

BLUNCK, JOHN H.

1853-1924

John H. Blunck was found dead in his bed at the W.H. Loomis ranch Monday morning. Coroner McCallum was called and upon making investigations, found a note indicating death had been self imposed as a means of relief from illness from which he had suffered for some years past. For the past few months he had been cooking at the Loomis ranch. The coroner delayed burial until the cause of death could be definitely ascertained, the result being substantiation of the information contained in the note left by the deceased.

Funeral services were held from the mortuary Wednesday.
