

KINIKIN, J.B.
1867-January 18, 1920

Death came as a relief to J.B. Kinikin Sunday afternoon. He came to this place from Oklahoma over a year ago, upon advice of physicians, seeking relief from supposed rheumatism. Some months later, becoming entirely helpless, hospital physicians were called and it was found he was suffering from a disease commonly known as "creeping paralysis" and that his condition was hopeless. Nothing could be done for him except make him as comfortable as possible while life lingered. He leaves a wife and several children.
